Re: Gillespie Land and Livestock

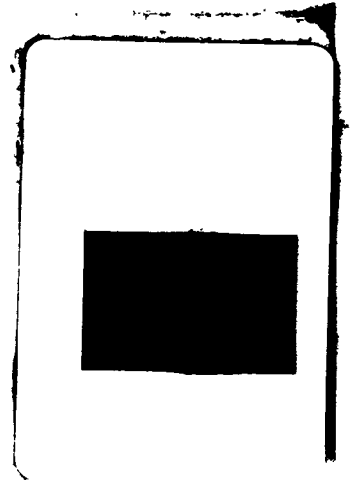

Dear Mr. Hance:

Please be advised that this law firm represents Gillespie Land and Livestock, owners of real property located at the mouth of Dry Creek, Milburn, Utah. Approximately one week ago excavation was made pursuant to your instructions and direction along and adjacent to the northerly side of the road at the mouth of Dry Creek; which excavation or ditch will drain into a ditch system on the easterly boundary of that property. Because of the drainage into this excavation, substantial quantities of water will or are likely to be deposited in the ditch system which it will be unable to handle. As a result thereof, flooding will arise and will result in damage to Gillespie Land and Livestock property. The change which you have made on the drainage is one which is not compatible with existing conditions.

DEMAND IS HEREBY MADE upon you for the immediate change and proper ditching of the excavation and ditch which you have caused to be constructed, so that the same will properly drain back into the main stream channel of Dry Creek. That change should be accompanied by proper culverts under and across the roadway so that the same is not damaged thereby.

YOU ARE FURTHER HEREBY PUT ON NOTICE that any and all damage, loss or injury resulting therefrom or connected with the failure of you or your company to properly ditch and re-channel the water back into the main stream of Dry Creek will be at your sole cost and expense.

Because we are neighbors, it is unfortunate that you did not discuss the same with us prior to your making the changes. Unless you take immediate steps to correct this problem, we will be required to take such other and further legal remedies that are available to us at this time.

Very truly yours,

JRG/lk
